Board: This is where you organize your pins into categories. The categories can be as broad or as specific as you'd like. Ex. "recipes," "wedding," "chicken recipes," etc.

Categories: Popular topics to browse as defined by Pinterest.

Followers: Anyone who has chosen to regularly view your pins.

Following: Any accounts you have chosen to follow. Note: You can choose to follow all of someone's boards or just individual ones.

Pins: These are the images you have added to your Pinterest boards.

Profile: Most of the details about you, or another site user. You may use your profile to incorporate your web site link, Facebook and twitter accounts, plus a brief biography.

Repin / Repins: A step beyond a "like," a repin allows you to share someone else's pin directly with your followers.

To Like: "Liking" something is similar to repining (without making a copy of it on your own boards). You can find the list of things you liked below "Likes" on your profile page.

To Pin: To place a visual representation of a particular website, video, or image on your board.
